making the connection

At the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia, we believe that connecting donors to the causes they care about makes all the difference.

We believe that engaged donors give more, give more strategically, and feel more connected to the community. So the theme for this year's Annual Report is "Connection." Over the past year, the Community Foundation has facilitated many connections between donors, grantees and community causes. The highlights in this report showcase just a few of these connections throughout the 2011-2012 fiscal year:

- We co-hosted the second annual "Let's Move the Needle on Childhood Obesity" event with Inova Health System at which schools, business leaders, government officials and nonprofits shared concrete ideas of what can be done to curb childhood obesity in Northern Virginia.
- We facilitated several partnerships between donors and organizations in need, using our knowledge of local nonprofits to broker connections with interested donors.
- We supported and helped promote giving circles – such as the Giving Circle of Hope - as they grew in their capacity to provide support to organizations that increase connections throughout our community.
- We honored Washington Gas for their community leadership and outstanding corporate citizenship.

As donors grow in sophistication, their need to directly engage grows as well. As nonprofits address the critical and often complex needs of our community, their need for support also grows. The Community Foundation is uniquely positioned to help make these connections.

Our mission is to grow philanthropy to meet the most critical needs of the community, a mission that is only realized when we make the connection to each other and to the causes and values we have chosen to nurture.

Let's Move the Needle on Childhood Obesity: A Community Call to Action

To help shine a light on the issue of childhood obesity and inspire action to address it, the Community Foundation and Inova Health System partnered for the second year in a row to present “Let’s Move the Needle on Childhood Obesity.” The event was attended by more than 230 school teachers and administrators, business leaders, government officials and nonprofit leaders.

Panel speakers represented schools, grassroots organizations, medical groups and researchers. Dr. Sandra Bruce Nichols, Chief Medical Officer of the Northeast Region for United Healthcare, delivered the keynote address.

To help celebrate and recognize some impactful programs that inspire healthier living and demonstrate tangible results, the event also featured the first annual “Let’s Move the Needle on Childhood Obesity” Awards. Winners were selected in a competitive process from a field of 38 nominees. Three first-place winners each received $2,000 and three runners up each received $500 to help grow and sustain their programs. All awards were made possible by the Community Foundation and Inova Health System.

“The Community Foundation and Inova Health System host this event because we believe now is the time to take action,” said Community Foundation president, Eileen Ellsworth. “The collective efforts of everyone concerned will rebound to the benefit of our children and our community. We plan to keep the momentum going and do what we can to help move the needle on childhood obesity.”

Let's Move the Needle on Childhood Obesity Award Winners

Nadar Por Vida (Swim for Life), Fairfax, VA: This program targets childhood obesity and the cycle of severe drowning among Latinos, minorities and low-income children in Northern Virginia by providing a safe atmosphere to learn swimming as a life skill, a means of exercise, and a vehicle for assimilation. After a mere three weeks, children who are new to the sport can swim across the pool. Several children from the Nadar Por Vida program have been sponsored to attend the elite UVA Swim Camp and USA club teams, and one student qualified for the Virginia High School State Championships this year.

Jennie Dean Elementary School Running Club, Manassas, VA: The Running Club is a program designed to implement cardiovascular fitness in young members of the school. Designed to focus on motivating children from 1st to 4th grade, the Running Club improves cardiovascular fitness among students and provides incentives, including personalized certificates of achievement, chains with running charms for each 100 laps they complete, recognition on a large bulletin board poster in the gym, and more. Results were noted in the Fitnessgram scores: 80% of the 3rd and 4th graders ran one mile without stopping and 90% of 4th graders could do 50 curl ups, all well above the national average.

When it comes to childhood obesity in Northern Virginia, the facts are simple:

- One in four children/adolescents is overweight or at risk of becoming overweight.
- Approximately 80% of parents say their children eat too much fast food and get too little exercise.
- Most children and teens spend four or more hours a day in front of a screen (TV, computer, etc.).

C.H.A.N.G.E. Program, Fairfax Pediatric Associates, PC, Fairfax, VA : The C.H.A.N.G.E. Program (Children with Health, Activity, Nutrition and Good Emotions) is a comprehensive weight management program for overweight and obese children in Northern Virginia that includes meeting with a pediatrician, pediatric nurse practitioner, registered dietician, physical therapist, pediatric cardiologist, and psychologist to learn how to eat healthier, exercise effectively, and improve their self-esteem in a fun and motivating program. Of the 92% of families that completed the program, 82% of participating children improved exercise tolerance and 64% improved their body mass index.

Brokering Interests & Causes for Donors

The Community Foundation for Northern Virginia is in a unique position to broker relationships between donors and the causes they care about. As nonprofit organizations state their needs in grant applications, donors also state their areas of interest – it is only a matter of matching the two and building long-lasting relationships.

convening connections

“When I first saw the new trail [the SCA’s] trailblazers had created on the southern slope of the preserve with its gorgeous panoramic view of the Rappahannock River and surrounding marshland, I had shivers.”

– Ms. Voorhees

Connecting for Conservation

During an informal meeting between Community Foundation staff and Nancy Voorhees, a member of the advisory committee of the Alan M. and Nathalie P. Voorhees Fund at the Community Foundation, Ms. Voorhees casually mentioned a 728 acre preserve her family had left to The Nature Conservancy. The last time she'd visited the preserve, she found that Hurricane Irene had destroyed its 300 foot boardwalk and caused a mudslide at the start of the hiking trail, making it impassable. Immediately staff thought of the Student Conservation Association (SCA), which they had recently learned was looking for a new project. Over a simple cup of coffee, an idea was planted.

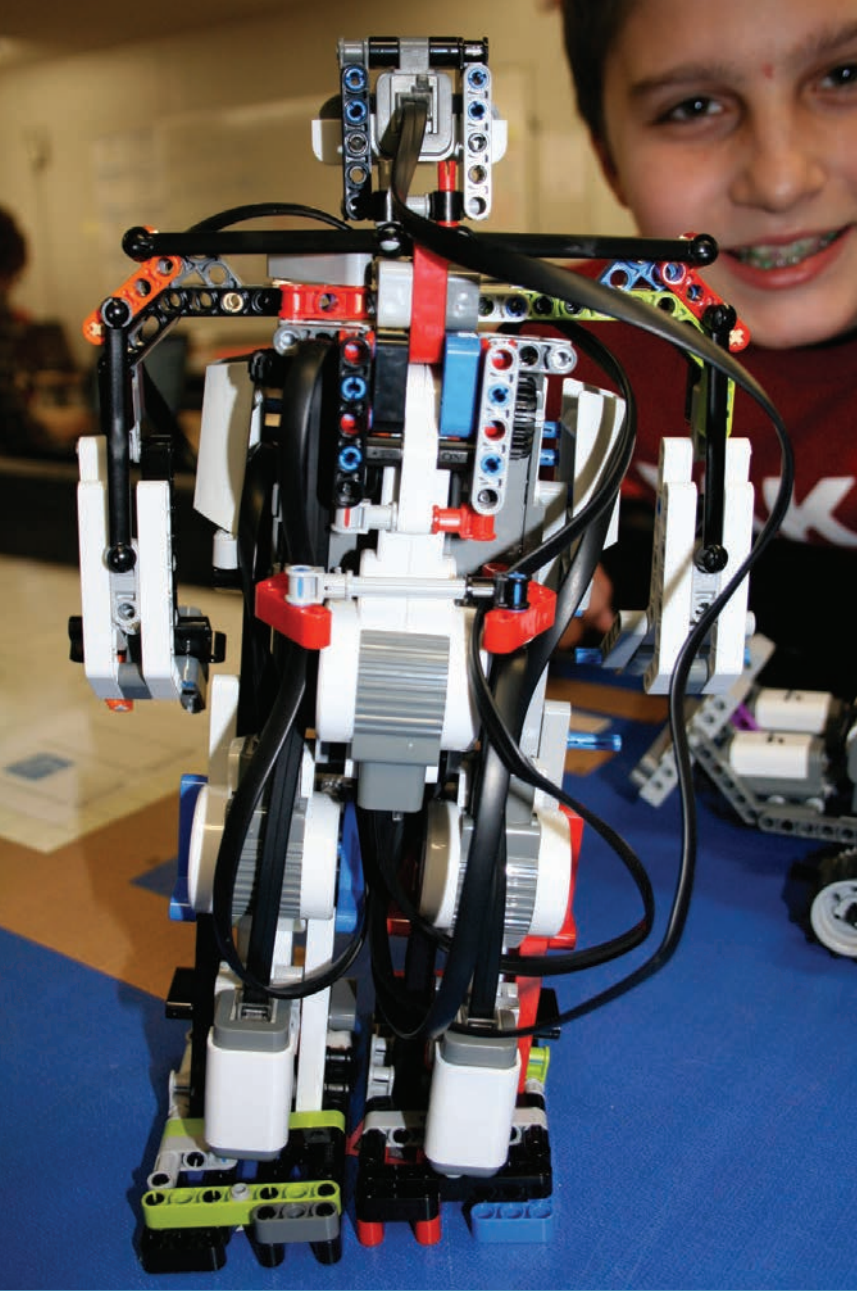

Nancy Voorhees with the SCA team

Within a week, the Community Foundation had made introductions between the SCA and Ms. Voorhees, and a collaborative partnership grew. Ms. Voorhees decided to recommend a grant from the fund in her parents' name at the Community Foundation to help support an SCA crew work on the preserve, following plans developed by The Nature Conservancy. With careful surveying, planning, and a lot of hard work, the crew was able to design and build a quarter-mile section of new trail that connected an existing trail and bypassed impassable areas. They also built fences and switchback retaining walls.

In addition, volunteers from Dominion Virginia Power partnered with the SCA for a "Putting Our Energy to Work for the Environment" day. Together with SCA staff, they repaired four miles of damaged trails, worked on repairing the boardwalk, and removed large fallen trees.

"I could not believe the improvement the SCA's efforts made," said Ms. Voorhees. "When I first saw the new trail their trailblazers had created on the southern slope of the preserve with its gorgeous panoramic view of the Rappahannock River and surrounding marshland, I had shivers. I recalled a comment Dad made long ago about how it would have been great to have a trail there, but he said it would be hard to build. Dad was a transportation planning engineer, so when he said something like this couldn't be done, I took it as fact. Mom and Dad would have loved to see the new trail. Dad would also have enjoyed working alongside SCA and The Nature Conservancy in their hands-on conservation efforts on the preserve."

Kathy Molina, a teacher at Arlington's HB Woodlawn Secondary Program, has dedicated much of the past five years to an elective class for 7th and 8th graders that incorporates computer programming and engineering in a fun, hands-on way: using LEGO® bricks!

converging connections

“Every now and then a student will tell me that they want to be a robot engineer — for me, that’s the most rewarding part of this course and I’m grateful to the Community Foundation for helping me accomplish this.”

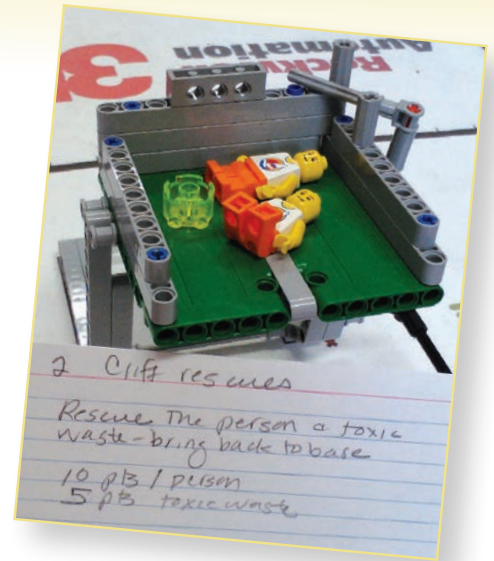

– Ms. Molina

Connecting for Innovation

Working with LEGO® Education base sets and a Carnegie Mellon curriculum, Ms. Molina’s robotics course focuses on teamwork and “coopertition” (a phrase coined by US FIRST Robotics that integrates cooperation and competition) and prepares students to set a path toward possible careers in the science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) fields. The course became very popular in a few short years and soon Ms. Molina realized she would need to purchase additional supplies to match the student interest, so she contacted the Community Foundation to inquire about potential grants.

The Community Foundation contacted an anonymous donor who had a history of supporting engineering education to tell them about the LEGO® robotics class, its popularity and its need. It wasn’t long before a grant was made to the school for Ms. Molina’s class. Now students are using their newly acquired programming skills to do such various challenges as teaching their robots to mimic honey bees in search of the correct color flowers to pollinate, collecting and logging data, competing at Lego’s Green Cities Challenge or the FIRST Lego League and participating in an ever-popular robot sumo contest. Students also participate in discussions as to the moral questions that are arising as robotics technology assumes a greater place in society and worldwide endeavors.

“The course encourages competition right at the age children can enjoy it the most,” says Ms. Molina. “Competition and scientific research are core components of the curriculum, but the students are able to go at their own pace and do what they’re interested in when it comes to engineering. Every now and then a student will tell me that they want to be a robot engineer – for me, that’s the most rewarding part of this course and I’m grateful to the Community Foundation for helping me accomplish this.”

Next semester Ms. Molina plans to add a girls-only robotics class to the schedule.

The Giving Circle of HOPE

Collectively Doing Good While Having Fun with a Purpose

The Giving Circle of HOPE is a committee advised fund at the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia. Since 2004 more than 100 members have contributed $550,000 to create positive change in Northern Virginia. It all started with four women who shared a single vision: the impact that a minimum of $1 a day in membership dues could have on communities in need.

Members of the Giving Circle of HOPE contribute to a grant fund, receive and review grant applications from local nonprofits for specific projects, and vote to determine recipients of their $5,000 grants. Similarly, members work together on Giving Circle of HOPE-led service programs, community fundraisers and educational seminars. A single member's idea can be brought to fruition by the time and talents of others, as has been the case with service programs such as Kids' Club at the Embry Rucker Shelter, Caring Friends at Cameron Glen Nursing Center, or the Helping Hungry Kids weekend food distribution for elementary students.

Working alongside others with a passion for making a difference brings out the best in everyone. Collaboration and camaraderie are key elements in all Giving Circle of HOPE endeavors. Members have "fun with a purpose" and generously share their time and resources for a common cause.

The Giving Circle of HOPE has successfully organized fundraisers that leverage business partnerships and draw in members of the community. One example is their "Empty Bowls" fundraiser, which attracts more than 500 people from the community. Another fundraiser is the Giving Circle of HOPE Alternative Gift Market, which provides holiday shoppers with an opportunity to purchase gifts that will have a positive impact on others while learning about the work of local nonprofits. Ongoing service programs encourage volunteerism and touch the lives of countless low-income, immigrant, elderly, or otherwise vulnerable populations.

Membership is open to all who wish to make a difference in this community.

Future Fund Connections

In 2011, the Community Foundation launched the Future Fund, a giving circle for young professionals that would enable the up-and-coming professionals in their 20's, 30's and 40's to learn about the most critical needs of the community, network personally and professionally, and engage in philanthropy at affordable levels.

connecting the future

2012 Future Fund Grants

The House, Inc., $25,000

To support its Student Leadership Center, the primary resource that provides before and after school, weekend, evening and summer day programs for underserved students.

Liberty's Promise, $25,000

To support its after school civic engagement programs for low income, immigrant youth at T.C. Williams and West Potomac High Schools, and their internship program which places documented immigrant youth in internships with nonprofits, government agencies, or small businesses throughout Northern Virginia.

Loudoun Youth*, $4,000

To support year-round youth engagement opportunities, which provide teenagers with opportunities to learn, develop and implement leadership skills in the local community and schools.

Thanks to its success, the Future Fund had $4,000 left after their two grants were made. The membership voted to grant these funds to Loudoun Youth, the first runner-up in the grantmaking process.*

Update from the Future Fund

This was the first year of the Future Fund’s grantmaking process, which was met with great success. Members of the Future Fund voted to support nonprofits working in the area of Child and Youth Development, with a particular focus on programs supporting youth leadership. The Future Fund received 28 grant applications and a grants committee worked to review the applicants, conduct site visits and share information about the finalists with the entire Future Fund group.

The two winning nonprofit organizations, which received $25,000 each, were honored at the Future Fund Annual Awards Gala. The event was attended by more than 300 individuals celebrating the Future Fund’s success by dancing the night away on a colorful LED dance floor. Proceeds from this Gala are added to pooled membership dues and provide funding for the 2012-2013 round of grantmaking.

“We’re having a blast learning together, playing together, volunteering together, and engaging in collective decision making about where our philanthropic dollars will be spent,” says Katy Moore (pictured to the right), director of member services at the Washington Regional Association of Grantmakers. “My participation in the Future Fund has been a much more enriching and rewarding experience than if I’d simply written a check to a local nonprofit.”

The Community Leadership Award

Presented to Washington Gas

The Community Foundation for Northern Virginia's Leadership Award is presented annually at our Sweet Home Virginia Gala to an individual or organization for outstanding service and dedication to improving the quality of life for all Northern Virginians.

Washington Gas has made an impact as a corporate and community trailblazer, serving in leadership positions with multiple organizations. In addition to fulfilling the energy needs of its customers in the growing Washington region, the company has built a legacy as a responsible corporate citizen by supporting numerous community service programs focused on health, education and the environment.

Washington Gas provides assistance to heat the homes of families in need, no matter what type of fuel they use, through its signature philanthropic program: The Washington Area Fuel Fund (WAFF).

Employees donated more than 9,700 hours of their time during 2011 at volunteer events. Its commitment to improve the quality of life of thousands each year has made Washington Gas one of the premier regional corporate citizens—and a good neighbor.

Community Grants Made by the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia

Congratulations to the grantees of the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia's 2011-2012 discretionary grant cycles. The Community Foundation awarded a total of $464,829 in grants to 59 nonprofits. These grants act as a catalyst to help raise the overall health and wellbeing of citizens of the Northern Virginia community.

Greenbrier Learning Center
Support from the Community Foundation helped Greenbrier Learning Center (GLC) expand to an additional site, serving an affordable housing development. Working closely with the schools where students are enrolled, GLC emphasizes reading and language development, supports overall academic achievement, and fosters social-emotional development.

Apply For Grants

The Community Foundation for Northern Virginia conducts an annual Community Investment Fund grant cycle open to nonprofit organizations providing services in Northern Virginia (Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun and Prince William Counties and the Cities of Alexandria, Fairfax, Falls Church, Manassas and Manassas Park). Community Investment Funds make grants in the following areas: Child and Youth Development; Education; Health, Mental Health and Aging; Military Personnel and Their Families and Poverty Relief. Grants are evaluated by a volunteer grants committee. Applicants must be 501(c)(3) organizations or organizations providing charitable or educational services. Local, state and federal government entities are not eligible to apply. Grant requests for capacity building, program or general support purposes are considered. Funding may be used to support, expand or enhance existing programs or to start new programs. Applications for capital improvements, endowments, or scholarship awards will not be considered. For more information about upcoming grant cycles, visit www.cfnova.org or contact our Director of Grants at lesley.macdonald@cfnova.org.

scholarship recipients

“My father is self-employed and was out of work for nearly two months after a major surgery. My mother is a church secretary, which she loves, although the pay isn’t up to par with the rest of Loudoun County. This scholarship helps me not to be as much of a burden to them. It will also help me graduate without much debt, which will be very helpful on a teacher’s salary!”

- Morgan Mines, sociology major with a concentration in childhood and youth at George Mason University and recipient of a Rose Koury Scholarship.

become a donor

Contact us at info@cfnova.org or visit www.cfnova.org to become a donor today. Thank you.

Donors can establish funds during their lifetime or as a bequest in their will. Gifts can include cash, cash equivalents, stock, real estate, income from Charitable Remainder Trusts, assets from Charitable Lead Trusts, tangible and intangible property, and other planned gifts including bequests, retirement assets, life insurance policies, pooled income funds, gifts of property with retained life estates and bargain sales. Choose a fund that works for you.

Donor Fund Options

Donor Advised Funds: For as little as $10,000 you can open a donor advised fund with the Community Foundation. Get an immediate tax deduction for your contribution, then continue to advise the Community Foundation on grantmaking from the fund. A Donor Advised Fund can be either endowed (limits the amount of grants to 5% of the fund balance each year) or short term (allows the entire balance, principal plus interest, to be granted out at any time).

Field of Interest Funds: By establishing a Field of Interest Fund you can target your gift to address needs in an important area of community life. Your gift stays flexible enough to meet community needs in your interest area — even as they change over time.

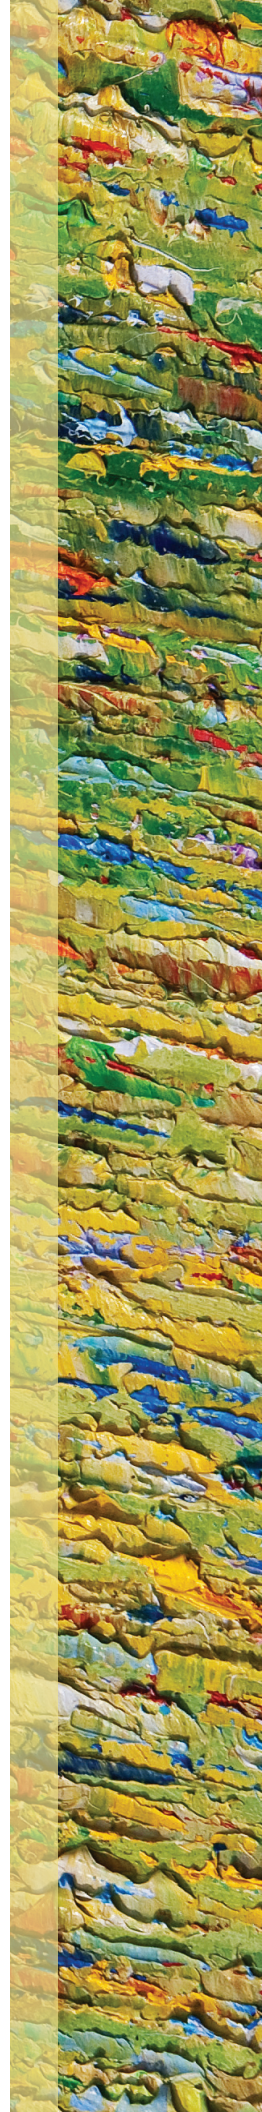

Designated Funds: When you open a designated fund at the Community Foundation you identify the organizations to whom grants will be given for the entire duration of your fund.

Scholarship Funds: Establish a scholarship fund with the Community Foundation and provide educational scholarships. With this type of fund you are investing in your community's future and showing students you care.
